  - Information design
  - Clear, descriptive title and headings
  - Secondary source research (including scholarly sources)

Rhetorical Choices Paper Prompts
Use the following prompts to help you write your paper on the rhetorical choices you made when assembling your report, and feel free to write about other rhetorical choices you made too.
- Who is the audience of this report? Why would they be interested in reading your report?
- Why did you decide to write about this topic?
- Was it easy, not-too-hard, or difficult to find sources for your report? Which source did you find the most useful?
- Reflect on your analysis. Which criteria ended up being the most important in your analysis? Was it difficult to evaluate your findings?
- Was it difficult to come up with a recommendation?
- Did you choose to include a visual? Why or why not? If you included a visual, why did you choose to include this particular visual?

There are not any wrong answers in this part of the assignment. The only way you can receive less than full credit on this portion of the assignment is by cutting yourself short and not fully documenting your rhetorical choices.
